Scope

The editorial team has consciously chosen to open the door wide to all scholars from a range of disciplines publishing social enterprise research. The aim is to encourage knowledge sharing across disciplines to generate stronger research overall in the field. The SEJ will accept rigorous research papers that address key aspects. Issues of importance, which can be addressed at a global, national and/or individual social enterprise level, include but are not limited to:

- Theorization of the nature of social enterprise
- Regional and geographical dimensions of social enterprise
- Strategic management in social enterprises
- Social venture creation and social entrepreneurship
- The sustainability of social enterprise
- Measuring social value
- Marketing in social enterprises
- Growing and scaling social impact
- Hybridity and conflicting logics
- Public policy & social enterprise
- Social investment
- Social enterprise incubation and acceleration
- The development of social enterprise as a field of study
